3. [redacted] The main speaker [redacted] employed on the London Commodity Market as a commodity broker. [redacted] gave an introduction to the internal workings of the market which soon confused all of those present. However, it was decided that providing the inevitable revolution was universal then the remaining forces in the capitalist world would not be able to impose sanctions via the commodity market to isolate any individual revolutionary country, as the effect of these sanctions was illustrated by the reaction of the United States government after the Chile revolution.

4. The meeting then moved onto normal business matters. Sales of the new SKAN (School Kids Against the Nazis) paper were encouraging and the distribution of these papers was to be reported by the local newspaper. It was also announced that there would be a pre May Day March through London from Trafalgar Square to Victoria Park. This was due to have 'a carnival atmosphere' and would include various bands including the Tom Robinson Band. Lotteries are being organised on a district basis in order to raise money for the forthcoming general election. Reports were also received which were encouraging in regard to the development of the Anti Nazi League and Womens Voice groups. The Womens Voice group are currently establishing the full details concerning the imminent closure of the Jubilee Hospital in Woodford. Nothing else of interest was said."
