He has recently been involved with the Welsh language Society and is an associate of Privacy and other prominent extremist members of the Welsh language Society. He is particularly interested in Welsh politics and is a member of the Welsh Nationalist Party, although his own politics are more inclined towards Communism than Nationalism. He joined the Welsh Nationalist Party because he felt they were the most militant party in Wales. His sympathy towards the causes of the Welsh Language Society is more cultural than political as he feels the society has no long term solution.
