1. The following information has been received from a reliable source:

2. "On Thursday 4 December 1975 between 7.45pm and 10pm at Charlton House, SE7, a regular monthly meeting was held of the Greenwich Trades' Council. attended by sixteen persons. The meeting was chaired by Privacy the President, who was ably assisted by Privacy the Secretary.

3. Following acceptance of the previous meeting's minutes, a report and discussion took place on adult illiteracy. The delegates from the National Union of Teachers and the Association of teachers in Technical Institutes accepted that paid non-union labour could be used in any scheme implemented to help such people.

4. Privacy next moved a resolution to demand the reinstatement of Privacy and Privacy to the Greater London Association of Trades' Councils and its sub-committees. These three had been suspended from the Association because of their disagreement over the fact-finding visit to Northern Ireland organised by the GLATC and Belfast Trades' Council in July of this year. This motion was passed.

5. The Executive Committee moved a resolution that the Trades' Council send a delegate to the Ad-Hoc Bloody Sunday Commemoration Committee and affiliate to the local Troops Out Movement. The first part of this motion was easily carried but the second produced much heated debate and was finally carried on the chairman's casting vote."
