5. POSE continued by saying that the labour, Tory and Liberal parties had lost the support of the workers and that the SWP represented the only real alternative. The Communist Party of Great Britain was planning to substitute capitalism with state capitalism, whilst the other Trotskyist groups and local left groups were not representatives of the working class. He closed by saying that it was the responsibility of all SWP members to spread the word that the party believed in workers control of the country's industry and wealth.

6. The final half hour of the meeting was taken up with questions from the floor but nothing of interest was raised."

7. A list of new contacts made at the meeting is contained at Appendix 'A'.
