Several others of those present agreed with her. She then said that she thought it would be a good idea and not contrary to the work 'libertarians', to publish a leaflet stating clearly the aims and principles of the group in the broadest of terms, since she believed some people were uncertain about this. Again, she was supported by others present.

5. There then followed a period of general discussion during which no conclusions were reached, save that it would be better to deal with the subject of aims and principles at the next meeting; this was agreed.

6. In a short closing speech [Redacted] invited everybody that the main function of the group was to provide local libertarians with the opportunity of exchanging ideas on political issues.
