

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

LOOSE MINUTE

F6 [REDACTED]

cc. F7 [REDACTED]

Brief for SDS

I attach a brief for your next meeting with SDS.

[REDACTED]

F7

[REDACTED]

26 July 1982

[REDACTED]

'121' Bookshop

Has source any information about the action described in the attached Daily Telegraph cutting? Were any members of the '121' Bookshop involved?

2. Can source comment on the relationship between the '121' anarchists and the Greenham Common Peace women who are using the '121' Bookshop premises as an office/contact address?. Does this imply any anarchist sympathies on the part of the women?

Oxford St '48' Defence Committee

3. Has source any information about the plans of the Oxford St '48' Defence Committee run by members of the '121' Bookshop and FREEMOR.

Little 'A' Printing Press

4. Can source provide any identifying particulars for [REDACTED] SN0 who has worked at Little 'A' for some years. Does she support the anarchist aims of its founders.

[REDACTED]

5. Has source any information about [REDACTED] current activities and political stance? Has he remained in contact with [REDACTED] since their separation.?

PRESS EXTRACT

PA ON:

NAME:

EXTRACTED FROM: DAILY TELEGRAPH

DATED: 23 JULY 1982

EXTRACTED BY: F7 [REDACTED]

DATE: 23 JULY 1982

Paint hooligans attack council leaders

Daily Telegraph Reporter

HOOLIGANS attacked the home of Mr Robin Pitt, Conservative leader of Lambeth Council, early yesterday after the council decided to raise rents and act against squatters.

Mr Pitt, whose party ousted the Labour group under Mr Ted Knight in May, believes he was followed from Brixton town Hall to his West Norwood home by people who interrupted the council meeting.

After a three-hour sleep he found his wife's car sprayed with a painted circle around the letter "A," the anarchist symbol.

His house was painted with the slogan "Stop the Evictions," and a block of flats nearby bore the slogans: "Evict the Rich," and "Squat, Squat, Squat," accompanied by the anarchists' symbol.

Miss Mary Leigh, housing committee chairman, found that "Stop the Evictions" had been painted on a wall opposite her solicitor's office in Streatham High Road.

She and Mr Pitt were adamant that the hooliganism would not deter the council from trying to rationalise its housing rent policy or to eliminate squatters.

Mr Robin Pitt.

Mr Pitt said: "Their intimidation has not succeeded in the past and won't succeed in the future. No one is going to stop us from implementing our policies."

The Conservatives gained control from the militant Lambeth Labour group with the support of five Alliance councillors and the vote of the outgoing Labour mayor, Mr Johnny Johnson, who ensured the election of a Conservative mayor.

He went into hiding before and after the vote because of threats of violence.