SUBJECT V.S.C.

"Autumn Offensive"

With further reference to the Vietnam
Solidarity Campaign's "Autumn Offensive":

During the past week V.S.C. supporters throughout the country have been hotly debating the decisions reached by the National Council of the organisation in Sheffield on 7.9.68. There has been strong reaction to the choice of "targets" for attack, and one result has been that a number of factions are now calling for a return to the American Embassy in Grosvenor Square. The Maoists have suggested that the Indonesian Embassy - also in Grosvenor Square - is a valid objective because many Chinese communists have been killed in that country in recent times.

At a V.S.C. meeting on 17.9.68 at Conway Hall it emerged that the Maoists, anarchists and Young Communist League supporters favoured a march to Grosvenor Square on 27.10.68. A resolution that demonstrators should go to 10, Downing Street on the 26th October and to the American Embassy the following day was defeated by 108 votes to 70.
Many leading V.S.C. members who are committed publicly to the Sheffield decisions are, nevertheless, saying privately that the march should pass through Grosvenor Square, and the Earls Court and Notting Hill Gate branches of V.S.C. have decided that the American Embassy is their "final objective".

A new South-East London ad-hoc Committee (which is Maoist-dominated) has been formed: this group intend to gather at Camberwell Green at 12 noon on the 27th October and then decide whether to join the main march or go direct to Grosvenor Square.

The anarchists held a meeting on 15.9.68 and agreed (a) to have one contingent of about 1,000

anarchists under a banner reading "United Libertarian Groups" and (b) to block the streets wherever possible.

At a lower level the anti-Police aspect of the demonstration seems to have most appeal. It is widely believed among the demonstrators that Police morale will be low on the day. Reasons given for this by Trotskyists are:-

1. The relatively light sentences given to persons who assault Police officers.
2. The growing sense of isolation from the public if "Police brutality" is given prominence on television and in the press.
3. Fatigue and indifference arising from cancellation of rest days to cover demonstrations.
4. The recent pronouncement of a Liberal politician that appears to condone violence.

It is reasonable to expect, therefore, that extremists, left-wing writers and personalities who sympathise with the aims of the demonstrators will attempt to stir up public opinion against the Police during the next few weeks. Information received suggests that by careful propaganda these individuals hope to show that incidents, whether in London, Chicago or Paris, are the responsibility of Police, who will be depicted in a brutal and corrupt role.
