3. The first item on the agenda was a report from the Group's secretary, Privacy, who said that Privacy had acknowledged receipt of a letter from him asking her to explain her absence from recent meetings. Privacy had promised to give an explanation at a later date. He stated that he had been contacted by Privacy concerning money owed by the Group for 'Libertarian Struggle'. This led to the treasurers report. Jim PICKFORD said that he was in possession of the money in relation to the last issue of the paper but would not be held responsible for debts incurred prior to his taking office. It was finally agreed that £1 should be levied from each member to help pay off the money owed.

4. The Federation of London Anarchists meeting on 3 April was then discussed and Jim PICKFORD was chosen as the Group's delegate for the meeting.

5. Privacy complained that he had received a form from the AWA membership secretary asking for his personal details and employment. No other member of the Group had seen this type of application for membership and Privacy was asked to write to Privacy requesting that the form be withdrawn."
